Three Generations of Chocolatiers

With little more than a dream, Ben and Josephine Munson founded Munson's Chocolates, originally titled "The Dandy Candy Company", in 1946. They set out to build a business that would reflect their passionate commitment to quality and service.

Their first store was in Manchester, Connecticut behind a tailor shop. They made sugar wafers and ribbon candy from sugar rations they received following the end of WW II. Soon after, they moved their operation into a horse barn converted into a candy shop. Ben started each day by mixing batches of creams and caramels from his own secretly guarded recipes. He would hand dip each and every piece in chocolate while Josephine would carefully package the assortments and prepare them for sale. The results of their efforts were chocolates so incredible that they became legendary in the community. If you wanted superb chocolates, you simply had to go to Munson's.

Today, Munson's is a third generation candy family and Connecticut's largest retail chocolate manufacturer. Munson's has grown considerably since then, but the standards have remained steadfast in crafting exceptional chocolate. Ben and Josephine's son, Robert Munson, joined by his daughter Karen and son-in-law, Jim continues the family commitment.
